EXHIBITS AT EDGERTON FAIR OF HIGH STANDARD

Edgerton fair was held last Saturday, August 16th. It proved very successful from every point of view. The standard of the exhibits well merited the description of being excellent in all classes.

The display of horses were strong, especially in the agricultural sections. Percherons, we noticed, predominated over Clydesdales in numbers, and in a lesser degree in quality.

The cattle, sheep and swine exhibits were likewise very good, but lacked in numbers the display that would fully represent the stock in the district. In this connection it is but fair to observe that the extreme heat which was prevailing and also the busy harvest and haying season, were all sufficient reasons to deter exhibitors from bringing in valuable stock over any length of road.

Potatoes in particular and vegetables in general were of the highest standard. In fact many of the potatoes shown, that would have been easier winners at other and larger exhibitions, failed to win prizes here.

Ladies work of all description were shown in large numbers and made a good display and crowded the large space in the pavilion allotted to these sections. Competition in the bread classes was keen and occupied more than one hour of the judges' time in making the awards.

The judges supplied by the Dept. of Agriculture were Messrs J. G. Taggart and D. A. MacKenzie, both of the Vermilion school of agriculture.

L. F. Byrnes and E. N. Evans acted as stewards for the horse classes, E. Jackson and W. J. Challenger in the cattle sections; H. Witherell and W. Wilson in the sheep and swine classes; whilst A. Lawrence and N. Davidson acted as stewards for the ladies and childrens work.

In the evening a baseball match between Dolcy and Edgerton was played, the home team was lacking several of the regular players, both teams put up a good game, but Dolcy proved the victors to the score of 4-3 in their favor.

Locally Raised Steer Fetches $12 Over Top Market Price; $142.60

E. B. Lang has just returned from Edmonton, to which city he had taken a car of cattle, 20 head in all, for which he obtained the sum of $1500.

Lang had 9 head of his own cattle, 11 of John Murrays and 1 of Ole Nysetvolds. Those of Murray's were yearlings going to market for reason of shortage of feed. The sale of these is responsible for the low price obtained by the whole shipment.

One of Lang's steer, an animal, two years old last May, fetched $12 over the market price, a sum of $142.60

Mr Lang reports the market good for god fat stuff; but poor for poorly bred and thin stuff, which are a drag on the market. It is now a good opportunity to get stockers.

In relating his experiences Mr Lang stated that he found a manifest effort on the part of all authorized buyers to obtain for the purchasers the highest prices. He also came into contact with another class of buyer, who were out to obtain at knockdown price any animals that were not just right for the trade. This latter class, he stated, acted in conjunction in holding down the price to a manifestly unfair figure.

Dept Of Agriculture Supplying Rye Seed

The farmers of Southern Alberta whose crops have been reduced by drought will be glad to know that the department of Agriculture is making provision for Fall Rye Seed in the same way as advanced or seed grain were made last spring.

The department is looking after the unorganized areas while the Municipal Department is authorizing action on the part of municipalities in the same way as was done last spring.

A maximum of twenty five bushels of seed can be secured. Those who can afford to purchase this seed can do business directly with the Dominion assistance of the Department of Agriculture Branch at Calgary without the who require credit can secure their seed through the Seed Branch at Edmonton. The Department of Agriculture is protected by a lien on the land. The price of the seed is $2.20 per bushel. The furnishing of this seed is subject to the holding out of the supply at the Dominion Seed Branch at Calgary.

The minister of Agriculture has been urging the sowing of Fall Rye especially in a dry season. The supply of both native grasses and roughage from grain crops is reduced in dry seasons and quick crops are needed for both hay and pasture. If rye is sown in July or August it furnishes feed during the autumn and is a crop that is ready for grazing again early in the spring as soon as the snow goes away. It can be grazed up until nearly the middle of June if the season is not too dry and can then be left to ripen for grain or can be immediately cut for hay. The crop is a highly beneficial and profitable crop in any kind of season and throughout the province. Besides its value for forage it is useful as a green crop to plow down and is also useful to hold the land against blowing. Much of the land in Southern Alberta has been a subject to frequent cultivation and is now so fine that when it becomes dry it blows badly. The rye prevents this in both the fall and spring. Its being established at the opening of the spring also saves it from being affected by drought in July to the same extent as spring crops are. It is one of the best and grown and farmers should take advantage of this group especially on areas or in seasons of light precipitation. The recent general rains have made conditions good for quick germination of this crop. It can be planted well into September but is better in by the middle of July for Fall pasture.

The Chauvin Agricultural Society directors are holding a meeting next Saturday.

Public Schools Open Monday Next

The Chauvin public schools will be re-opened for the fall term Monday, August 25th. Mr Sim will act as principal with Miss Holbrook and Miss McKinnon as members of his staff.

Owing to the withdrawal of the Roman Catholics the trustees find that the two school buildings will provide sufficient accommodation. The larger building is being partitioned, and both buildings are receiving a thorough cleansing in readiness for opening. It will no longer be necessary to use the Folkin cottage for school purposes, all the work can be carried on in the one set of buildings and this will in no small measure render better tuition possible.

FEED SITUATION IS IMPROVED

The favorable weather of the past two weeks have wrought a considerable improvement in the feed proposition. Several farmers, who for a time, had grave fears of insufficient feed for their stock are beginning to see a more bright prospect of enough to carry on.

PROSPERITY WILL NOT BUILD TEACHERS HOUSE

The ratepayers of the Prosperity School District at the recent meeting after discussing the high cost of lumber and other considerations, decided not to build a house for the school teacher at the present time.

THE BEST OF ALL CROPS IS HEAVY AT KILLARNEY LAKE

How To Get Free Rates On Hay And Stock

For those who have not seen the regulations relating to the movement of hay, live stock and haying outfits free the following information is given.

Application forms may be secured from the railway offices, from the government labour offices at Calgary Lethbridge and Medicine Hat or from the Department of Agriculture at Edmonton. These forms must be filled up and sent to the department and certificates will be sent back the same day as the applications are received. They should be addressed to Mr. J. D. Smith, Seed Branch, Department of Agriculture, Edmonton.

The conditions are more limited in some respects than they were last year. Free freight on stock, hay or haying outfits will not be given to those who have more than one hundred head of sheep and only two cars of stock can be shipped north free and seven cars of hay south. The dry area is defined as being south of a line from Lloydminster to Chipman, from Chipman to Tofield, from Tofield to Camrose and from Camrose to Wainwright and continuing west. The rates apply only within the province except that free freight will be given for hay brought from Saskatchewan or Manitoba to the dry area.

The volume of feed in Central and Northern Alberta is not as large as it was last year. There will probably be a hundred thousand tons secured this year but there was a good deal more than this shipped last year. There is still available a good deal of pasture about which information can be secured by writing the department.

CHAPTER XXV
Grievances Of A Chore Boy

The month of January was, in Daisy's picturesque language, 'a peach of a month,' not that a word suggestive of ruddy bloom and outh walls is really very apt for the best of a Manitoba Januaries, but she was looking beyond mere climatic conditions, to which in her sturdy health she was largely indifferent, to the kindly fashion in which Fortune seemed to be furthering her own particular aims. Of course it was very cold, but the sleighing was good, and there were things doing which made sleighing worth while. First, the Tennis Club and then the Bachelors in town gave dances, for which a general invitation for the family and friends was sent to the Dingle, and though Mrs. score of there being no adequate chaperon, she allowed herself to be over-ruled, and each time a party of four was made up of Bert and Evelyn, and Chris and Daisy. These dances involved some very pleasant preliminary evenings at the Dingle—for Daisy undertook to teach Chris the mysteries of the two-step and the Highland Schottische, and though he possessed a full measure of awkwardness and shyness he was fast arriving at the stage when the pleasure of pleasing Daisy was superior to all other considerations.

Usually it had been necessary to propitiate Marion before making any plans which disarranged the ordinary routine of the household, but under the influence of her own wooing and wining Marion proved wonderfully complaisant, and Daisy was quick to discover that her bandiwaage about Marion's 'Canuck,' which formerly was a great matter of offence, was secretly now rather a source of gratification to her sister. Probably the only one of the rouse hold who had a real grievance against the new order of things at the Dingle was Sam, the Barnado boy—a chore boy without a grievance would not be a chore boy, so that was to be expected—but even his grievance rested on rather shadowy grounds, and his little sympathy from his fellow Stepneyite at Jim Hardie's. 'Don't you get all you can eat three times a day, and a warm bed—' exposed the latter, 'and a boss that doesn't tell you any lip, or raise Cain—' 'are you grousing at?' 'Who's talking about the boss or the blooming cab,' retorted Sam, though Daisy, who burnt the bread twice last week, and Miss Enderby—Marion I call her—always sets a little jug of cream for her ma, and skim milk is good for the rest of us—it is not the vittle I'm talking about but the blooming savings on this last month, and—' 'do I come in, I should like to know? If all the folks are home I might as well not be there for all anybody thinks of me—it's pretty lively—' 'it—oh, of course—there's Bert and the schoolmarm playing their cribbage in one corner, and Daisy and the English guy from your place meandering about with their weeds and grub in another, the "old man" pretending to read the paper with a snore—' 'a while on the durns stock—' 'one eye open to see as Daisy is doing herself—I suppose that's all right—like you and me came to see—for—eh, what? And if it's really worse—there's Daisy—she can do the things away and it's "Daisy, you play us a tune?"—and the old man takes down his fiddle and—' 'dance—that English must be through his paces before Daisy shows him off in town—and nobody asks me if I can dance—not much—Why don't I go and sit in the kitchen? I did one night—and ran into Marion cuddling her sandy-headed Canuck while the lamp turned down, and pretending to be washing the supper things as she'd took out two hours before—What did she say?—she up and says as sharp as you please—"You can take this lamp and go to bed, Sam, you must be up early in the morning as your master," this with great bitterness and contempt, "your master is going to town." But the old lady takes the cake—' 'last week, when everybody was out except the boss, she sat looking at me while I was a-dosing by the stove, and at last she up and says "Don't you think you should improve your mind, Sam, by a little serious reading so as to have something to think about at your work—would you like me to teach you the Church Catechism?" I was that took aback I didn't know what to say, but I managed to get out as my eyes were sore from the snow—and she took it quite serious-like, and, will you believe me, she went and put a lot of greasy stuff on them and me sit and take it. I was thankful for it, and sit the rest of the night with a handkerchief and my head like a washer woman's the limit for simpleness, but I do admit the old lady means well.

The 'peachiness' which so appealed to Daisy and the 'carryings on' which had scandalized Sam, both passed away with the coming of February, and the farm work which, with the exception of necessary chores, had been largely quiescent during the cold, short days, again became more exacting, both to the Dingle and at Jim Hardie's. Jim and Chris Raye were on the road from early dawn till after dark four or five days in the week, either bringing home wood from the bush or drawing hay from Jim's hay meadows in Sweden, while Bert Enderby was kept busy drawing grain to town to procure the necessary money for paying off the bills for the housekeeping and notes for farm machinery, which were becoming more and more insistent with each week's mail. Indeed the bundle of letters and papers from old Dawsons became rather an object of dread than of pleasant anticipation, and Daisy, who was not very orthodox in her views, often declared her belief that ills rather than filthy lucre were the root of all evil—did they not keep her father fussing about the houses at unseasonable hours, they moved her mother to unprofitable reminiscences of the happy days when her papa met Christmas, while Marion, unduly careful to Daisy's thinking at all times became possessed with a zeal for small and vexatious economies, evidently under the impression (Daisy's view again) that she could liquidate a nine months' grocery bill by putting only one egg in a batter pudding.

And the English letters and papers, in their way, were even more depressing than the duns of the Minnedosa tradespeople, for they told of nothing but disaster upon disaster in the Boer war. Ladysmith was in the blackest hour of her heroic resistance, and as hope followed hope so did failure step upon the heels of failure, as Buller's relief columns were thrown back again and again from the blood-sodden banks of the Tugela.

Of the Dennis boys and the Can-ture takes a note which runs until November 1st, 1920. The note is pro-adian contingent but little news had reached the Dingle. In the beginning of February Bert had a short note from Tom Dennis, written just as they were entraining for De Aar and the front. They had had a rough and well—that and a promise to write more fully when they reached camp, was all it contained beyond a cutting from a Cape Town paper telling of their reception on landing in South Africa.

S. S. Lesson

Sunday August 24, 1919.—Social Responsibility—Luke 10: 25-37.

What is a Christian's relation to others? Our lesson answers this. We learn that the way of life does not run without bending between the home and the temple. It curves to many a place of need where we must pause like the Samaritan. Our world is the home, the temple and the neighbourhood. The neighbourhood is as big as the world of need.

Judgement is by character and not by action. The actions remembered by Christ when forgotten by the soul are decisive, because, behind the single separate action, there lay a permanent disposition. To help when and where and as you can is the spirit that reveals Christ.

Editor Chauvin Chronicle,
Dear Sir;

In order to describe the fair held at Chauvin Aug. 4th we must go back about six weeks when we began to get the colts halter broken. Then when we tried to take them the fun began. Some stood on their heads, others sat down but we got there safely.

On arriving at Chauvin we found lovely fair grounds. Everything is so well planned and laid out. There is lots of room and everything is so handy. Hay and water were supplied free. There are stalls to tie the stock to right beside the show ring. Then there is a large industrial hall and booth. The ladies served both dinner and supper and were very busy.

There was a large showing of horses cattle, sheep and pigs, but what I liked best was the Clydesdales with their clean white feet.

The pure-bred horses were judged before dinner. Then, as the judges were getting busy again, and a good crowd had gathered, down came the rain, but, as everyone has wished for rain all summer we got it when all were together to enjoy it.

The best entry for the children was the boys and girls riding, which they certainly enjoyed even if they did keep the judge busy getting out of their way. They had races too, followed by other sports, but owing to the wet ground racing was not very safe. The women, too, had a good showing in the hall. There was lots of bread, butter and fruit, as well as fancy work of all kinds. The vegetables were fine, several large collections being shown, as well as grains in sheaf.

The poultry entries were not large but were very good.

On the whole Chauvin fair was extra good even if the day wasn't.

We ought to be proud of the man,agers for the way everything was arranged and we know that Chauvin fair will soon be as good as many of the larger fairs, and we hope to be there again next year.

Yours Truly,

REPORT OF THE CHAUVIN FAIR

On August 4, Chauvin held its annual fair. Although the day was not nice, it being very rainy in the afternoon, the fair was well attended. The rain which was so badly needed rather people than the other way; and I think from all accounts everybody got home safely feeling well satisfied with both the fair and the day.

There was a large number of cattle at the fair, there being some very good specimens of beef and milch fine horses and sheep.

In the ladies' work too much cannot be said, many very fine things being exhibited in the fancy work. There was also a large assortment of things in the cooking line, proving the ability of the ladies of our community.

There was some home racing in the afternoon which was very interesting, both riders and horses showing skill.

The children all took a keen interest in the stock-judging competition, skill in stock judging.

There were many kinds of vegetables shown, some very large new potatoes, also many other kinds of vegetables, showing that in spite of the dry season we have people in our community who understand gardening.

There were quite a few pail-fed calves, all a good size. It was quite cute to see the small children leading their calves.

Altogether the fair proved very successful and let us all endeavour to make each succeeding one even more successful.

A LITTLE CHILD SHALL LEAD THEM

ORIGINAL STORY
Written for the Chauvin Fair

Many years ago, Jack Bernard accompanied by his wife and two small children, settled in a sparsely settled district, some sixty miles from Winnipeg.

As they had all the distance to carry provisions it was very difficult for them.

It is of an incident that happened while Mr. Bernard was away on one of these trips that I wish to write.

He started early one bright spring morning. All went well at the little home until evening. Went down to the little field to bring up her cow. But, to her surprise she found the fence down and the cow gone. What was she to do! She must have the cow, in order to get milk for the baby. She couldn't take the children with her, her nearest neighbour lived five miles away. So she decided that she must leave the children and go herself.

So she returned to the house, told Bessie, her little five year old daughter, what had happened and after telling her to take care of the baby she sat out in search of her cow.

She had not been gone long, when Bessie heard a step, thinking her mother had returned she ran to the door but to her surprise there stood a strange young man.

"Where are your parents kid?" He asked. "Papa has gone to town and Mamma is looking for our cow" Bessie replied.

"You are not alone, are you?" he asked as sudden gleam shone in his eye. Bessie instantly sprang into the house and grabbing Bessie by the arm and asked if there was any money in the house. "Yes" Bessie answered. "Bring it to me" he commanded. Bessie obeyed.

He snatched it from her hand and was about to leave the house when Bessie caught his coat saying, "Please give me our money before you go. I guess you won't see this again re answered as he thrust it in his pocket. you?" asked Bessie her eyes full of wonder. "Oh no, just taking it to help my needy relations" was the reply. You are not married, are you? Bessie asked, "No" "They why do you want the money?" "Oh, I know" she continued "You have a mother and you want to give this to her, but then you mustn't steal it as your mother wouldn't like you to do that. But if you wait till Mamma comes I think she will lend you some. But if you are not in a hurry, wouldn't it be best to go and earn the money for your mother?"

When Bessie first mentioned this mither the strangers face grew deathly pale. His thoughts flew back to the old home in Ontario. In fancy he was once more a little child seated on his mither's knee while she taught him one of those sweet lessons of kindness and truth and honesty. How had he lived up to those lessons. Now he was in the act of robbing a helpless child. Where was that dear old mother now? Perhaps lonely and in want and pining for her only child who had deserted her in her old age.

Then and there he resolved to lead a different life for the sake of that dear old mother, and as Bessie looked at him she couldn't imagine what made his eyes fill with tears or why he randed her back the money saying, "Good-bye, child and God bless you for reminding me of my duty and with this he left the house leaving Bessie wondering what kind of a thief-man tris was.

ARTLAND ARGUS

We caught a glimpse last week of Mr. and Mrs. Gibbard of the Lake. These are rare visitors, but none the less welcome.

Mr. and Mrs. Johannes were also of the above car party.

Mrs. Geo. Masson was visiting in town last Friday.

SOME CROWDS

We note that a large crowd was so great that attended a recent meeting of the Ponteix Local Grain Growers Association, so hear an address from Mr. George Broadly of the Central Office, that it was necessary to "remove the paper" from the walls of the school house, in order to admit the audience.

We shall not be forced to adopt this painful necessity at Brady School, its walls not being adorned with paper, but, we certainly should all emulate the example of Ponteix in the way of a crowd, when we all go to hear Mr. Howells on the 1st September.

Walter Scott of the Canadian R.C.R. arrived Tuesday week from England and France, after nearly 2 years Military service.

All our holdier friends are gradually returning home but we have still to welcome Donald Macintosh, K. Coe and Lieut. Michel.

Ralph Storie has returned from a business trip to the East.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Scott, Mr. and Mrs. T. Scott, Miss F. Scott and Mr. and Mrs. Booth we noticed among our visitors last Monday week.

We enjoyed the pleasure of a visit from Messrs. K. and L. D'Albert, anson of Chauvin last Sunday week.

Corp. K. N. McRae, of the C. E. force arrived a few days ago from England after an absence of nearly three years on active service.

Mr. McRae is brother of the manager of the Galvin Lumber Co. at this point, with whom he is at present on a visit.

Cutting is now general throughout the district, and has been undisturbed by the demon of early frost.

Amongst the passengers on the crowded Atlantic express of last Friday, was Sergt Frank Wright, M.M. Canadian E.F. accompanied by his bride returns to Artland after an absence of nearly 4 years on active service.

ROBERT JUKES

Mr. A. J. Robinson of Chauvin E.C.D. representative, will be in Artland on Friday of this week, and will ship cream from the depot. He intends to make a weekly visit to Artland for this purpose.

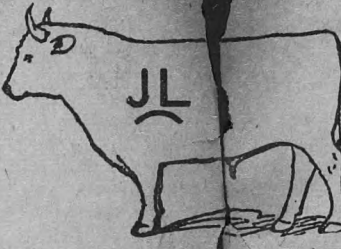

We understand that Mr. Jukes potato crop is looking fine since we had these good rains.

AT THE TOP OF THE EARTH

In days no further back than five years ago, the glorious scenery of the Canadian Rockies in Central British Columbia, which has been opened up by the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, were reserved for the intrepid hunter or prospector and the native red man. Today this playground so expansive that distances do not describe it, is virtually at the door of the tourists, travellers, alpinists and sportsmen. This unspoiled wonderland may be penetrated to the very heart in luxurious modern railway trains. The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway has issued a handsomely illustrated folder descriptive of a "Tour of a Thousand Wonders" through the Canadian Rockies--Mount Robson route, embracing Jasper Park, Mount Robson Park, the historic Skeena River country, the land of Totem Poles, so rich in history and romance, and embracing an ocean passage of 700 miles through protected waters of the 'Inside Passage' of the North Pacific coast, from Prince Rupert to Vancouver, Victoria, and Seattle, on the steamships 'Prince Rupert' or 'Prince George' of the Grand Trunk Pacific Steamship Co., conceded to be the best, finest and fastest vessels in regular North Pacific coast service. A most interesting side trip from Prince Rupert to Anyox, B. C., is also described. Copies of this folder may be had on application to any Grand Trunk Pacific Agent.
